

Tracy Brodrick, MA LPC Licensed Professional Counselor

Most people seek counseling to find relief from pain and suffering. I believe counseling provides much more - not only a way to move away from suffering, but a way to move towards personal growth and discovering new possibilities. I consider it a privilege to walk alongside another in their journey towards healing and wholeness, while providing the safety of confidentiality and professional competency.

Repeatedly, I am told that I cause people to feel accepted and comfortable opening up and sharing their lives and concerns. I can remember talking about wanting to be a counselor since I was a child... since I understood what it meant. I am very happy to say that it has brought me more joy than expected to see this hope come into fruition. I love my job! My own personal experiences have richly added to any education that I have obtained in this field. I know what it's like to wrestle with difficult circumstances and really work on yourself as an individual. I hope to share in the journey with you.

EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL CREDENTIALS

Bachelor of Arts in Psychology, Southeastern University, 1993
Master of Arts in Clinical Counseling, Ashland Theological Seminary, 2001
Licensed Professional Counselor, Georgia #3660
Level 1 Gottman Certification, September 2012
Certified PREPARE/ENRICH facilitator